TUSCALOOSA, AL ITINERARY

Tips provided by Lyell Walker and Josh Howard, editors of SB Nation's Alabama blog, Roll 'Bama Roll (<http://www.rollbamaroll.com/>) and Alabama fans.

Unique traditions to experience on game weekend

- Visiting Paul W. Bryant Museum to learn more about the school and its most famous coach.
- Singing "Rammer Jammer" at the end of a win.

Best local hangout/restaurant to watch the game

- Egan's Bar
- The recently renovated Houndstooth is covered with famous memorabilia and is the traditional hangout for fans.

What to wear to the tailgate/game

- Bring a hoodie because it can get chilly in Tuscaloosa at night

Must-sees at the tailgate

- Walk of Champions – two hours before kickoff the team walks from the buses to the front of the stadium.

The food/drink must-have at the game

- Archibald's BBQ. Their ribs are delicious and their pulled pork is a must.
- Gallette's on University Blvd - a lengthy and delicious menu; "Yellowhammer" orange juice drink

Best shops to purchase team merchandise

- Stadium Drive – vendors line the street and offer tons of great options

Favorite part of the campus

- University Blvd which is around the stadium. The Walk of Champions takes place here and there's also statues honoring the school's most famous coaches and stones representing all their national championships.

Other insider tips and hidden gems in Tuscaloosa

- Denny Chimes. This is a clock tower that has the hand prints of previous team captains.
- The Quad is the big area where the heart of the tailgating occurs and is a place to be on Saturday game day.
